

Nashville General Hospital

Nashville General Hospital (NGH) at Meharry Medical College is the public hospital for Nashville and Davidson County. As such it is the primary source of healthcare delivery for the underserved and indigent population in this region, and provides a diverse clinical experience for fellows. This rotation focuses on an integrated mixture of inpatient consults, nuclear cardiology, cardiac catheterization, echocardiography (TTE and TEEs), and ECG interpretation. In addition, fellows may choose to have their weekly continuity clinic at this institution under the supervision of the NGH faculty members.
